Interview:

Whitley Goodman
Lauderdale, Mississippi
(601) 9[REDACTED]-cellular

Whitley Goodman has been identified as the seventeen year old girlfriend of Christian Andreacchio. On Friday, March 14, 2014, Investigator Dale Jones interviewed Goodman via telephone. She advised as follows:

She is currently staying with relatives in Fairhope, Alabama. She left the Meridian area to try and put some space between herself and the death of Christian Andreacchio. She feels guilty about his death and thought a change of scenery might help.

Goodman stated that the last time Andreacchio was home from work they took a trip to the mountains. One night they were in the hot tub drinking. Andreacchio got drunk and started crying and talking about a recurring dream he was having. In the dream a baby was crying about his father going to jail. Andreacchio thought the baby in the dream was him. Goodman stated she just thought he was drunk and made him go to bed.

Another incident occurred after she discovered a text message from Andreacchio's father on his telephone. Apparently a letter from Kay Jewelers, addressed to Christian Andreacchio, had come to the Andreacchio home. The father's text told Andreacchio not to propose to Goodman and to think about the girl in Vicksburg. She and Andreacchio started fighting and he threatened to kill her and himself.

Goodman told Jones she had purchased four bars of Xanax on the afternoon of February 25, 2014. She took all four of them later that night. She stayed up until 6:00 a.m. on February 26th. She does not remember exactly how many Xanax she took but knows the four she purchased the day before were gone.

She was asleep in their apartment when Christian and Dylan Swearingen showed up between 10:00 and 11:00 a.m.

Andreacchio said he had flooded the Mississippi River with oil before leaving with Swearingen. He rambled on saying, "Once you get over the fear of death you don't feel anything." Goodman stated she was having a difficult time staying awake from lack of sleep and the effects of the Xanax.

She and Andreacchio immediately began arguing and fighting. He acted like they were breaking up as a couple. Andreacchio sent Swearingen to Chic Fil A for food. Swearingen returned with the food a short time later.

According to Goodman, Andreacchio pointed his gun to his head and said, "I could never make my mom and you happy." Andreacchio laid the gun on the table. Swearingen picked it up and hid it but later gave it back to Andreacchio.

Later in the afternoon Swearingen went to Best Buy. Goodman fell asleep again. When Swearingen returned he woke Goodman up and told her he thought Andreacchio was dead. Goodman ran upstairs to the bathroom, opened the door and saw Andreacchio slumped over in the tub. She hugged and held him until Swearingen told her the 911 people told him to have her come out of the bathroom. Goodman stated she never heard a gunshot.

At the conclusion of the interview Goodman told Jones she feels responsible for Andreacchio's death. She believes it was her fault. She stated she felt like she had the weight of the world on her shoulders.

*Investigator's note: At the onset of his telephone conversation with Goodman, Jones identified himself, his profession and who he was working for. She agreed to talk with Jones. About fifteen minutes after their conversation concluded Goodman called Jones back. She stated she had spoken with a family member and began questioning Jones about who he was working for. Jones explained it to her again. Her family member had told Goodman that Jones was trying to put her in jail for Andreacchio's death. Jones explained again that he was just trying to get answers to questions Andreacchio's family still had. He invited Goodman to call him back if she had further questions or wanted to talk more.

Interview:

Dylan Swearingen
8824 East Parkway South
Lauderdale, MS 39335
(601) [REDACTED]

Dylan Swearingen has been identified as the subject who traveled to St. Rose, Louisiana on February 26, 2014 and picked up Christian Andreacchio bringing him back to Meridian, Mississippi. On Friday, March 14, 2014, Investigator Dale Jones interviewed Swearingen at his home in the Dalewood community of Lauderdale, Mississippi. His grandfather, Dale Cornwell, was present during the interview. Swearingen advised as follows:

He and Christian Andreacchio went to school together. They were fairly close during school. He stated they once dated the same girl.

Swearingen stated that at 1:37 a.m., February 26, 2014, he received a telephone call from Andreacchio. Andreacchio stated he needed a favor and asked Swearingen to come to St. Rose,

CONFIDENTIAL

Louisiana to pick him up. Swearingen agreed to do so but had no money for gasoline. Swearingen borrowed money from his grandfather and purchased gasoline at the TA Travel Center in Meridian. Swearingen confirmed the receipt mentioned in the overview report was his purchase. He stated he left Meridian after purchasing the gasoline shortly after 4:00 a.m. He and Andreacchio communicated several times as Swearingen traveled to St. Rose.

As he got closer, Andreacchio told Swearingen that Whitley Goodman had been seeing Matt Miller while Andreacchio was off on the tug boat. Andreacchio had placed a tracking program on Goodman's cellular telephone and it showed her spending a lot of time at Miller's residence. Andreacchio was suspicious that Goodman had brought Miller to the apartment he shared with her and his brother Josh. According to Swearingen, Andreacchio intention was to catch Goodman and Miller at the apartment together.

Swearingen finally met Andreacchio who he believes was refueling the tug boat at the time. He said Andreacchio was acting normally at the time. They stopped at a Race Track convenience store to purchase more gasoline for Swearingen's truck.

While traveling back toward Meridian, Swearingen asked Andreacchio if he wanted him to take him to Vicksburg so that he could pick up his Jeep. According to Swearingen, Andreacchio told him no, he wanted to go straight to Meridian. He wanted to know if Goodman was dumb enough to bring Miller to their apartment.

Swearingen also stated that during the trip Andreacchio told him he wanted to take all of his money out of his checking account so Swearingen could have it. Swearingen declined the offer.

Swearingen stated they arrived at Andreacchio's apartment in Meridian between 11:30 and 11:45 a.m. Goodman was alone in the apartment and was "passed out" on the sofa. Andreacchio woke her up and they immediately began arguing. According to Swearingen, Goodman was high on Xanax.

Swearingen stated he became uncomfortable with their yelling and arguing and went upstairs in the apartment. He heard Andreacchio yell, "Do you love me?" but could not hear Goodman's response. Swearingen peeped over the hand rail and saw Christian with his .45 caliber handgun pointed at his head. Andreacchio yelled, "Do you love me?" a couple of more times while holding the gun to his head. Finally Andreacchio place the gun on the table. Swearingen stated he went and got the gun and hid it on the window sill beside the front door. He later gave the gun back to Andreacchio. At one point during the argument Andreacchio threw Goodman's cellular telephone against the wall damaging it so it would not work.

Swearingen stated he was becoming more uncomfortable and suggested he go get the three of them some food. Andreacchio agreed and gave Swearingen his debit card. He also asked Swearingen to go to the bank and withdraw all the money from his bank account. Andreacchio texted Swearingen his bank account information.

CONFIDENTIAL

Swearingen departed and stopped at the bank. They would not release any money from Andreacchio's account to Swearingen. He called Andreacchio and told him this. He then went to the ATT store to see about Goodman's telephone then to Chic-Fil-A, bought some food then returned to the apartment. Goodman was passed out again. She got up and they started to leave. They announced they were going for a ride. Swearingen fell asleep on the sofa. When he woke up Andreacchio and Goodman had returned and were coming out of their bedroom. Goodman went back into the bed room and fell asleep again. He and Andreacchio sat and talked.

At approximately 3:30 p.m. Swearingen left and went to Best Buy. He believes he was gone about an hour. When he returned to the apartment Goodman was asleep in the first floor bed room. He looked around for Andreacchio but did not see him on the first floor. He went upstairs and checked that bedroom not finding Christian.

Swearingen noticed the upstairs bathroom door closed but the bathroom light shining under the bottom of the door. He knocked on the door and asked Andreacchio if he was okay. He got no response. He knocked louder and asked again but got no response. He opened the bathroom door and found Andreacchio dead and slumped into the tub.

Swearingen yelled for Goodman as he started down the stairs. She immediately got out of bed and ran to the upstairs bathroom. She started screaming for Christian to wake up and began hugging his body. Swearingen was on the telephone with the 911 operator. Swearingen initially gave the wrong address for the apartment. They told him to keep everyone out of the bathroom. He told Goodman to come out of the bathroom. She did so and sat on the bottom step of the stairs.

Swearingen believes the police arrived within fifteen minutes of his 911 call. The police tested Andreacchio, Swearingen and Goodman for the presence of gun shot residue. The officer explained to them that this test would show results if they had fired a gun within the last day or two. According to Swearingen, Goodman blurted out that she had fired a gun within the last couple of days. She stated she was with friends out on a country road when she did so.

Goodman was transported to police headquarters in an unmarked police car. Swearingen was instructed to drive himself to the police station for a formal interview. He did so.

Swearingen told Jones that Andreacchio and Goodman fought and argued all of the time. Their arguments centered on her drug use and her cheating on him. According to Swearingen, Andreacchio tried to look after Goodman. Swearingen said he tried to tell Andreacchio about Goodman's behavior while he was away at work. Andreacchio did not listen. Swearingen stated that his relationship with Andreacchio seemed to deteriorate a couple of months ago because of Swearingen's continuing efforts to tell Andreacchio of Goodman's activities.

Jones questioned Swearingen about the strong box Andreacchio was reported to possess. Swearingen stated he did not know about the strong box and had never seen it. He stated Andreacchio's grandfather, Joe Andreacchio, called him two or three days ago and asked him about the strong box.

CONFIDENTIAL

Jones questioned Swearingen about outgoing calls placed from Andreacchio's cellular telephone shortly after his death. Swearingen stated that Goodman's telephone was not working and she used Andreacchio's telephone to make several calls trying to get in touch with her mother. Swearingen stated that Goodman also used his telephone to make calls that evening.

Jones questioned Swearingen about any contact he has had with Whitley Goodman since Andreacchio's death. He stated she sent him several text messages on March 4th trying to get him to call her. He stated he has not done so. He stated Goodman's new telephone number is (601) 9 [REDACTED] [REDACTED] He believes her mother's telephone number is (601) [REDACTED]

Jones ended the interview with Swearingen.

Interview:

Josh Andreacchio
376 Lakeshore Drive
Lauderdale, MS
(601) [REDACTED]

Josh Andreacchio has been identified as the older brother and roommate of Christian Andreacchio. On Friday, March 14, 2014, Investigator Dale Jones interviewed Andreacchio at the apartment they shared. Andreacchio advised as follows:

Originally he and his wife lived in this apartment. They divorced several months ago and he kept the apartment. In late November 2013 Christian moved into the apartment with him. About a month after that Christian's girlfriend Whitley Goodman moved into the apartment as well.

Christian Andreacchio started working for Magnolia Marine two and a half to three years ago. Josh Andreacchio started working for the same company two to three months ago. They did not work on the same tug boat.

CONFIDENTIAL

On Wednesday, February 5, 2014, Josh went to work on his tug boat out of Vicksburg. He was supposed to work until March 5, 2014. On February 22, 2014, Christian went to work on his tug boat out of Vicksburg. Josh believes that Christian and Whitley broke off their relationship before Christian left for his 30 day hitch.

A day or two prior to February 26th Christian called Josh. Christian told him he was getting off his boat and Josh would probably be getting a call to confirm that Christian had a family emergency to deal with. Christian asked Josh to back up his story about the family emergency.

At approximately 7:00 a.m. on February 26, 2014, Josh sent Christian a text asking when he was getting off the boat. Christian responded by saying in an hour or so. Christian also said he was coming to Meridian to take care of this once and for all. Josh assumed Christian was coming to Meridian to kick Whitley Goodman out of the apartment they shared.

According to Josh, Christian had already made arrangements to catch a ride back to New Orleans the following day so he could get back on his tug boat. Some of Christian's co-workers have told Josh that Christian got off their tug boat sometime between 1:00 and 4:00 a.m. February 26th.

Josh's knowledge of the events of February 26th originates from Dylan Swearingen as told to Josh's family members.

According to Josh, Dylan Swearingen went to New Orleans and picked up Christian. Swearingen took Christian to Vicksburg where Christian cleaned out his Jeep and moved it to a different parking space at Magnolia Marine.

Josh stated that Dylan and Christian arrived in Meridian sometime around 12:00 p.m. They went to Christian's apartment where Christian immediately began questioning and arguing with Whitley Goodman. Shortly, Christian sent Dylan to Chic Fil A for food allowing Dylan to use his debit card. Dylan returned to the apartment where Christian and Whitley were still arguing. At some point, Christian placed the .45 caliber weapon at his head as if he were about to shoot himself. Dylan took the gun from Christian but later gave it back to him. At some point during the afternoon Christian threw Whitley's cellular telephone against the wall damaging it to the point it would not work properly. Christian and Ashley left the apartment announcing they were going to ride around for a while. Dylan remained at the apartment and fell asleep. Christian and Whitley returned and continued to argue. Dylan decided to go to Best Buy and to the ATT store to see about getting Whitley's phone repaired. When he returned Whitley was in the downstairs bedroom asleep on the bed. Dylan looked around for Christian but did not find him on the first floor of the apartment. He went upstairs first checking Josh's bedroom then the upstairs bathroom. Dylan reported that he found Christian slumped over in the bath tub dead. Dylan yelled for Whitley who immediately ran upstairs and grabbed Christian's body hugging him. Dylan told her she shouldn't touch his body and Whitley put Christian down and came back down stairs where she sat on the steps. She then went and lay down on the sofa and fell asleep again.

CONFIDENTIAL

Dylan reported that as soon as the police arrived at the apartment Whitley immediately woke up. He also reported that Whitley hid Christian's cellular telephone from everyone including the police. She finally got it out of her purse and gave it to the police who immediately handed it to Josh's uncle Chris.

Andreacchio told Jones that Christian and Dylan were friends and had gone to school together. Their friendship deteriorated several months ago when Christian learned that Dylan was using drugs including Lortab and Xanax. Andreacchio says it is unusual that Dylan is the one Christian called to come get him off the boat because Dylan was supplying drugs to Whitley.

Josh stated that at 4:57 a.m. on February 26th Dylan posted a message on Twitter indicating he was going from Meridian to New Orleans to Vicksburg and back to Meridian before lunch time.

Jones questioned Andreacchio about the .45 caliber handgun owned by Christian Andreacchio. Andreacchio stated that in the past Christian always carried this weapon with him when traveling to and from work.

Once Josh also went to work at Magnolia Marine, Whitley stated she was afraid to be at the apartment alone without some type of protection. For the last three months Christian has been leaving the .45 caliber handgun, loaded with a round in the chamber, and lying on the bedside table at the apartment.

Josh stated that Christian left the gun in that condition because Whitley was not able to pull the slide back on the weapon to make it ready to fire. Josh stated Whitley did not know how to operate the gun. He has seen her fire it and it fell out of her hand when she did.

Jones questioned Andreacchio about the lock box Christian is reported to have had. Josh stated he has seen the lock box but does not know what was in it or its current whereabouts. He stated that some of Christian's co-workers at Magnolia Marine told him Christian said there were $7,500 in cash and an untraceable 9 mm handgun in it.

Josh stated he would contact Jones if he found the lock box or any other items of interest as he continued to clean out apartment 801.

On Saturday evening, March 15, 2014, Jones received a text message from Josh. He reported finding a .38 special cartridge in a whiskey shot glass in the apartment. The shell was for a handgun Josh owned at one time but has since sold. He reported that as he was cleaning the shell up he saw a reddish colored residue he thought might be blood come off the shell.

Jones agreed to meet him at the apartment on Monday morning, March 17th to examine the shell to see if it held any significance to this matter.

Jones met Josh on Monday and examined the shell. There was no visible residue on it and it is of unknown significance to this investigation.
